Elizabeth Blackwell, M.D. (1821-1910) Nancy Ann Sahli 1974 Hobart and William Smith Colleges present a biographical sketch of the British-born American physician Elizabeth Blackwell (1821-1910). Blackwell was the first women to be awarded a medical degree in the United States. Blackwell received her medical degree in 1849 from Geneva College in New York state. In 1853, Blackwell opened a dispensary in New York City, which later became the New York Infirmary for Women and Children in 1868. Blackwell was instrumental in the founding of the National Health Society. She was a pioneer in preventive medicine and in the promotion of antisepsis and hygiene. A portrait of Blackwell is provided.

The Children's Table Anna Mae Duane 2013-06-01 Like the occupants of the children's table at a family dinner, scholars working in childhood studies can seem sidelined from the "adult" labor of humanities scholarship. The Children's Table brings together scholars from architecture, philosophy, law, and literary and cultural criticism to provide an overview of the innovative work being done in childhood studies--a transcript of what is being said at the children's table.

Together, these scholars argue for rethinking the academic seating arrangement in a way that acknowledges the centrality of childhood to the work of the humanities. The figure we now recognize as a child was created in tandem with forms of modernity that the Enlightenment generated and that the humanities are now working to rethink. Thus the growth of childhood studies allows for new approaches to some of the most important and provocative issues in humanities scholarship: the viability of the social contract, the definition of agency, the performance of identity, and the construction of gender, sexuality, and race.

Because defining childhood is a means of defining and distributing power and obligation, studying childhood requires a radically altered approach to what constitutes knowledge about the human subject. The diverse essays in The Children's Table share a unifying premise: to include the child in any field of study realigns the shape of that field, changing the terms of inquiry and forcing a different set of questions. Taken as a whole, the essays argue that, at this key moment in the state of the humanities, rethinking the child is both necessary and revolutionary.
